PROSTATE CANCER

WHAT IS A SUPPORT GROUP?

A support group is a group of men and women who have been affected by prostate cancer. They are often either dealing with a current diagnosis of cancer or are survivors of cancer. They meet on a regular basis to help each other, discuss shared experiences, and learn more about the disease and how to manage it.

Peer support can reduce the psychological stress associated with prostate cancer diagnosis.

SUPPORT GROUPS IN THE COMMUNITY

Support groups help raise awareness of prostate cancer in their local communities. Many groups invite guest speakers such as nurses, doctors, nutritionists, social workers, physiotherapists and pharmacists to provide people with more information.

In Australia, around 20,000 men are diagnosed with prostate cancer each year and more than 3,000 men die of it — more than the number of women who die of breast cancer.

It's nice to have someone to confide in that you feel is in the same boat and that really knows what you're going through.

WHY JOIN A SUPPORT GROUP?

Studies have documented that a diagnosis of cancer can be very stressful. Peer support from people with similar experiences has been found to be very effective in reducing this stress. Peer support is a system of giving and receiving help, founded on the principle of mutual respect and shared understanding of the cancer journey for people with prostate cancer. The opportunity to connect with peers with lived experience of cancer can be very powerful to reduce psychological stress.

Some of the many reasons to join include:

- To avoid feeling isolated and alone
- To feel cared for – it's like being part of a family
- To meet others who are going through the same thing as you
- To talk it through so you feel less anxious about your cancer
- For encouragement, optimism and inspiration
- To receive and provide others with support
- To gain relief from feelings of fear and depression
- To be able to ask questions and discuss your concerns
- To learn more about prostate cancer through guest speakers, books, DVDs and newsletters.

Studies have shown the psychological stress associated with any cancer diagnosis and found that peer support can reduce this stress. Evidence suggests that support groups can improve quality of life for people with cancer and their carers.
